Homecoming At Frankfort Will To Be Big Event

Sunday, September 25th is going to be Frankfort Homecoming Day and the event will be celebrated in the Frankfort grove in the afternoon and evening.

The afternoon will be devoted to sports and games of all kinds for which prizes will be awarded. A ball game between Mokena and Matteson is also scheduled.

The Hungry Five or "The Little German band" will play in the afternoon.

Cash prizes will be awarded to the oldest person born in Frankfort township and who is present, also to the youngest infant born in the same township and who is present.

In the evening there will be dancing with music by Rolie Meeks and his orchestra.

There will be plenty of refreshments served on the grounds and there will be plenty of parking space. Admission to the grove is free.

Everyone is invited to attend this homecoming event. Come and meet your old friends and have a good time.

Beg Your Pardon!

The editor's attention has been called to the fact that in the writeup of the Orland Park Labor Day parade in our issue of Sept. 9th, no mention was made of the Mokena Royal Neighbor float in the parade.

The omission was purely an oversight and should not be considered as slighting the Royal Neighbors as they are far too worthy an organization to be slighted.

The Mokena float entered in the Labor Day parade mentioned was prettily decorated and drew much attention and complimentary comment. The Royal Neighbors and their friends took much effort and work to decorate their float.

The Mokena camp of the Royal Neighbors is a very active one and has one of the largest memberships of any camp in this section.

NEW LENOX TO HAVE A COMMUNITY PLAY- GROUND GIFT OF SEN.

New Lenox is to have a community playground. This was made possible last week when Senator Richard J. Barr donated the use of a tract of 10 acres of land located on the Lincoln highway to the New Lenox Athletic association, which will sponsor activities among the villagers.

The tract is situated just west of the Methodist church camp grounds on the outskirts of New Lenox. It is a level piece of ground and will make an ideal spot for the laying out of tennis courts, a baseball diamond and a football field, according to Herbert Simon, chairman of the board of directors of the club.

Plans are already being made for the organization of a football team among the young men of the village, which will compete this fall in a proposed league to be made up of Orland Tinsley Park, Blue Island and other towns.

The ground is being leveled off, and it is tentatively planned to erect bleachers around the football field. Tennis courts and a baseball diamond are scheduled for the spring building program.

Leaders besides Simon in the project are Amos Bruns, Gordon Button and Fred Francis, all New Lenox residents. Button is a former professional football player and will probably serve as playground director.

Names of Small and Roosevelt Are On Com. Petition

No less personages than Franklin Roosevelt, candidate for president, and Len Small, Republican nominee for governor, favor the establishment of commission form of government in Will county, if you can believe the petition requesting that this proposition be placed on the ballot at the November election.

Reports that the legality of the petition may be tested in court followed denials by scores of persons that they had affixed their signatures to this unusual document, purporting to contain the names of more than 10,000 qualified voters of the county.

Franklin Roosevelt's name appeared with the address, "1900 Collins street, Joliet." This is the address of the state penitentiary and according to E. N. Stubblefield, assistant warden, there is no prison employee by that name. "If we had a guard by that name we'd fire him," Warden Stubblefield said, laughingly.

"Len Small's" address was given as "609 Elwood street, Joliet." According to the Joliet city directory there is a vacant lot at 609 Elwood street.

On page 315 of the petition the entry "West Pines Hotel, 417 Western avenue," is found. According to county officials this is the first time on record that a hotel has ever signed a petition.

The name of "R. C. Austin, 118 Pine street," appears on page 216. County Judge Ralph C. Austin, who resides at the Pine street address, stated that it was not his signature.

"Sebastian Lager, 604 Western avenue," appears twice on the petition. The late Sebastian Lager, former mayor of Joliet, died in 1924, according to members of the Lager family.

Assessor Frank Sloan of Lockport township, was indignant when informed that his signature had been forged to the petition. "I did not sign the petition and was never asked to," he declared. Mr. Sloan's position as assessor would be abolished if commission government was adopted.

Persons from all walks of life were among those who stated that their names were forged to the petition. The Rev. E. E. Hastings, pastor of the Central Presbyterian church in Joliet, stated that he did not sign the document, although "E. Hastings" with the Rev. Mr. Hastings' address 214 Richards street, appears on page 300 of the petition. On the same page is the name of Miss Emily Mack, 408 Richards street, Joliet high school instructor. Miss Mack declared she knew nothing concerning such a petition.

On pages 208 209 of the petition the names appear in alphabetical order.

While they are admittedly in favor of commission government, H. J. and H. H. Schluntz, law partners of State's Attorney Hjalmar Rehn, said their signatures were forged on page 209 of the petition. The name of the former was misspelled, the final "Z" being eliminated.

Lee F. Buell, county court house janitor signed an affidavit that his signature and those of his wife and daughter were forged to the petition. A similar affidavit was signed by George H. McCracken, Joliet business man.

The names of "Frank Zipf" and "Frank Zipf Jr., 649 South Chicago street," appear on the petition. Frank Zipf, Sr., who resided at that address, died, November 17, 1924, according to death records at the county clerk's office.

Hugh Hendry, president of the Central Trades and Labor council, denies that he had signed the petition although his name and address appear on page 326. He further stated that organized labor in Will county was opposed to the establishment of commission government here.

John Raine, well known Joliet barber, and Miss May Wheeler of the probate clerk's office, were among others who denied they signed.

Mokena Boy Hurt In Auto Accident

Eddie, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Wachter of Mokena, was quite badly cut in the face by broken glass when the car he was riding in and which was being driven by Henry Bornet, crashed into another car being driven by Ralph Hacker at the four corners on Wolf road south of Mokena Wednesday night. Eddie's sister Evelyn, Lester Niemann and Vivian Walston were also riding in the Bornet car. Miss Walston was quite badly bruised but the rest escaped injury. Eddie was sitting in the front seat and when the cars crashed the windshield broke and the broken glass struck his face cutting a number of deep gashes.

He was rushed to the office of Dr. E. G. McMahon in Mokena for first aid.

In the Hacker car besides Mr. Hacker were his wife and baby. The latter received minor injuries, while Mr. and Mrs. Hacker were unhurt. Both cars were badly damaged and were towed to the Mokena Sales garage on Wolf road.

Frankfort Couple Celebrate 15th Wedding Day

A wedding day—Yes! It was the fifteenth wedding anniversary of our well known Frankfort barber and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Pfaff.

So in commemorating this happy day their many friends of Frankfort and surrounding vicinities gathered together last Friday evening, September 16, at the Frankfort Grove to help them rejoice and celebrate this happy event.

Judging by the crowd present it was plainly evident that Mr. and Mrs. Pfaff has made a very large circle of friends during their brief period of married life.

In time to the rhythmic melodies played by the Clover Farm orchestra of Joliet, the old folks, the young folks, the children and even the wee little tots participated in having their full share of fun and joy.

At about eleven o'clock the bridegroom impersonating Charlie Chaplin together with Herb Lambrecht who impersonated the bride added their share of merriment by their clever and amusing antics.

The real bride looked exquisitely charming and sweet in her beautiful bridal attire.

After the grand wedding march the guests were served with a delicious lunch. The lovely cakes so many in number, the appetizing sandwiches, the tasty coffee and the spicy pickles just seemed to hit the spot judging by the after appearance of the kitchenette which had been so bounteously supplied.

The honored couple were recipients of a large bouquet of beautiful flowers and a collection as a token of remembrance of their many friends.

At a late hour the guests departed after wishing Mr. and Mrs. Pfaff many more years of happy wedded life.

Ah! Fifteen years, you say it is, it really doesn't seem, Those years have sped so swiftly by 'Tis almost like a dream.

We look into the future, We wonder and we sigh, If fifteen more will come and go So smooth and swiftly by?

Their many friends we can but wish, Their pathway smooth and bright, With best of health and happiness With burdens few and light.

Easement Papers Issued for The S. W. Highway

The remaining gap of five miles in the Southwest highway from Orland Park to the connection with Wolf road at Alpine is going to be finished by Cook County without any further delay as a result of a meeting with the Cook county commissioners and a delegation composed of Dr. W. R. Schussler of Orland, president of the Southwest Towns Chamber of Commerce, Wm. T. Beagley, highway commissioner of the town of Orland, Mayor Frank Harnew of Oak Lawn and Rev. Peter Geraghty of The Sag

Dr. Schussler pointed out to the commissioners that Robert Kingery of the Chicago Regional Planning Association had caused all further activities relative to the completion of the Southwest highway in Cook county to be stopped. He also reminded the commissioners of the statement which was made by Emmett Whalen at a meeting of the Southwest Towns Chamber of Commerce held at Essex last fall, in which Mr. Whalen, who is the president of the Cook county board of commissioners, declared that the Southwest highway gap in Cook county would be completed without further delay and he also called attention to the statement made at Orland at the Southwest Towns Chamber of Commerce picnic, August 21st by Homer Byrd, a member of the board of commissioners to the effect that the contract for the construction of the remaining gap of the Southwest highway in Cook County would be let September 15th, but that nothing had been done.

Dr. Schussler further pointed out that Cook county had spent thousands of dollars in building the Southwest highway up to Orland Park and of the importance of completing the gap which will make the final hookup with the Maple street road in Will county direct to Joliet.

One of the city commissioners of the county board made a motion that the Southwest highway gap in Cook county be completed at once. Commissioner Wm. Busse amended the motion that appraisers be put to work at once to set a value on the property which will be needed for the right of way and that Dr. Schussler be given the right of way papers and secure the necessary signatures to the easements and Commissioner George Miller seconded the motion. Dr. Schussler was given the easement papers. Soon as the appraisers finish their work he will be ready to take the property owners signatures. The highway will be built thru the forest preserve in Orland Park and thence southwestward parallel the Wabash railroad to Alpine as per the last survey which has been approved by the Orland Park village board, the Cook county highway department, the Cook county board of commissioners and the state highway department. Soon as the right of way has been signed for, the bids will be advertised for and the contract let.

R. A. Bechstein In Serious Auto Smash

Robert Bechstein of 2918 Normal Avenue, Chicago, and who maintains a summer home in Mokena, and Frank Zittleneu also of Chicago, figured in a serious auto collision Sunday afternoon about 1:30 o'clock at the corner of Maple road and Walnut street near the Silver Cross hospital in Joliet.

Mr. Bechstein was driving west on Maple road in a Nash car. A Ford, the name of whose driver was not learned was going south on Walnut St., but failed to stop for Maple road and hit the Nash broadside. The impact caused the Nash to turn over four times, roll down an embankment and landed on its wheels on a railroad track. The well built top did not crush which saved the lives of those in the Nash who received minor injuries.

The driver of the Ford was seriously hurt. Mike Haintab, a farm hand of Minooka suffered a fractured skull. Both were taken to the Silver Cross hospital.

70th Anniversary Of St. John's Is Largely Attended

The 70th anniversary celebration programs of the St. John Evangelical church in Mokena have been very largely attended. The celebration opened Sunday morning with a special anniversary sermon by Rev. Theodore Lapp and special music. In the evening the services were very largely attended. Rev. W. J. Cramer of Melrose Park, former pastor of the St. John church delivered the anniversary sermon. Rev. G. Gerhold of the St. Peter Evangelical church of Frankfort officiated at the altar. There was special music by several out of town choirs.

Wednesday night the entire program was given over to a band concert by the Tinley Park band.

The final celebration program will be held Friday night when the Ladies Aid and the Young People's League will put on a joint program of plays and other features.

Tinley Band Makes Hit At Church Celebration

The band concert given by the Tinley Park band under the leadership of Edwin Hirsch and under the direction of Mr. Weissner of Blue Island as part of the 70th Anniversary celebration of the St. John Evangelical church of Mokena in the village park adjoining the church Wednesday was par excellent and was much enjoyed and appreciated. The band of fifty pieces surely played well and is a distinct credit to their leader and director.

There were special features during intermission between band numbers.

Alex Garbien of Joliet put on a colored sketch and Eddie Giudette also of Joliet played a number of accordion solos.

Joe Ketter of Blue Island played a pleasing violin solo.

The village park had been put into a neat appearing shape and was well lighted and much credit is due those who put in their time and labor to beautify the park.

At the close of the concert cakes and refreshments were served.

Kingery Scored For Attempt to Block S. W. Highway

The September meeting of the Southwest Towns Chamber of Commerce held last Thursday night in St. Gerald's hall in Oak Lawn was very largely attended and was very peppy.

The matter of high taxes, their cause and their remedy hit a popular chord. The speakers who covered the subject pointed out that the public is to blame itself for high taxes which were caused by the public voting in favor of every bond issue that was put up regardless of how such issues were going to be paid for. The public was accused of wanting every improvement & convenience possible but now do not want to pay for it and in turn are placing the blame on the office holders. Rep. Frank Foster of Harvey showed that the people of Cook county have been in the habit of voting for many useless bond issues, citing for instance the bond issue which was voted thru in the sum of $2,500,000 for the purpose of building comfort stations in the forest preserves of the county.

Father Peter Geraghty of the Sag made a very impassioned speech advising his hearers not to condemn or criticize the government for the people are responsible for the government they themselves create. He also urged his audience to vote against bond issues calling for vast expenditures of public money.

The chief remedy advocated as a remedy for lower taxes was to vote against all future bond issues until such time as the country will be on a better financial footing and able to pay the debts it incurs.

Among other speakers were mayors Kasten of Blue Island, Bruggemann of Harvey, Harnew of Oak Lawn and Mahaffay of Palos Park.

Elliott Sproul who is a candidate for congress, Don C. Hall of Mokena, Rep. Frank Foster of Harvey, Rep. Mrs. Wilmart Ickes of Winnetka and Senator Arthur Huebisch of Brookfield also spoke. The latter said it seemed rather a paradox for him to advocate the support of a bond issue after all the other speakers had urged the people to vote against any more bond issues, but he said if the voters do not vote in favor of the $20,000,000 state bond issue in November which is to be taken out of the gas tax fund to pay off the money voted by the legislature for relief measures, then the entire amount will be placed on direct state tax and will double the state tax.

Dr. W. R. Schussler, president of the Southwest Towns Chamber of Commerce scored Robert Kingery of the Regional Planning Association for attempting to stop the completion of the Southwest highway from Orland Park to Alpine by writing a letter to the Cook County Board of Commissioners and stating that the traffic on the Southwest Highway did not warrant its completion in Cook county and that routing the highway thru the forest preserve at Orland Park would interfere with the bird sanctuary. Mrs. Ickes said that she had been removed from the Regional Planning Commission by Mr. Kingery presumably because she was in favor of the completion of the Southwest highway. Mr. Kingery has since been over ridden by the county board who have voted to complete the highway and have given the easement papers to Dr. Schussler to secure the signatures of the property owners along the highway for the right of way.

Musical numbers and songs were featured by the Momford Sisters and by Charles Fitzpatrick which were much enjoyed. A great deal of credit goes to Dr. Schussler and to John T. Emery for the success of the meeting. Mr. Emery was official chairman of the entertainment committee.

No date or place has been set for the October meeting.

Because emergency relief funds in many counties of the state have been or shortly will be depleted, Gov. Louis L. The day will be observed by a display of the flag, appropriate meetings and exercises and discussions of the constitution in public schools.

Freak Lawsuit

A lawsuit which lasted six years has been concluded in Paris. The amount at issue was five centimes. Apparently, after a book of tickets for the Metro, the Paris underground railway, had been bought, fares were raised, and a supplementary charge of five centimes was demanded when one of the tickets was presented. The result was that this action was brought against the Metro. It has failed, after the plaintiff has spent sufficient in costs to have taken him around the world.

Bids for construction of about $1,900,000 worth of hard roads, which were to have been received by the state department of public work and buildings on August 31 were delayed until September 6. The cancellation was made because of the short notice given contractors to prepare their estimates.

The interest earnings of $766,913.03 represents the greatest amount of interest ever earned by the treasury department in proportion to the rate of interest payment now in vogue by banks. The report represents the first complete fiscal year's report made by Mr. Barrett, who assumed office in January, 1931.

Petroleum in History

It is a historic fact that petroleum was used on the walls of Babylon and Nineveh about 2000 B. C. For ages seepages of crude oil have been drawn on and used by the people of Egypt, Mesopotamia, India and China, who for many centuries had dug wells and pits for the collection of petroleum. The modern method of drilling is believed to have originated with the Chinese several centuries ago. Commerce in oil is known to have existed in the Baku district of Russia as early as the Tenth century.

Dorothy's Mother Proves Claim

Children don't ordinarily take to medicines but here's one that all of them love. Perhaps it shouldn't be called a medicine at all. It's more like a rich, concentrated food. It's pure, wholesome, sweet to the taste and sweet in your child's little stomach. It builds up and strengthens weak, puny, underweight children, makes them eat heartily, brings the roses back to their cheeks, makes them playful, energetic, full of life. And no bilious, headachy, constipated, feverish, fretful baby or child ever failed to respond to the gentle influence of California Fig Syrup on their little bowels. It starts lazy bowels quick, cleans them out thoroughly, tones and strengthens them so they continue to act normally, of their own accord.

"Millions of mothers know about California Fig Syrup from experience. A Western mother, Mrs. J. G. Moore, 119 Cliff Ave., San Antonio, Texas, says: "California Fig Syrup is certainly all that's claimed for it. I have proved that with my little Dorothy. She was a bottle baby and very delicate. Her bowels were weak. I started her on Fig Syrup when she was a few months old and it regulated her, quick. I have used it with her ever since for colds and every little set-back and her wonderful condition tells better than words how it helps."

Don't be imposed on. See that the Fig Syrup you buy bears the name, "California" so you'll get the genuine, famous for 50 years.

Beet Sugar

The first factory for the manufacture of sugar from beets was erected by Edward Lee Church at Northampton, Mass., in 1838, and the following year it produced 1,300 pounds of sugar. A few other factories followed, but all were failures. In 1870, E. H. Dyer erected at Alvarado, Calif., a factory which became successful in 1879 and marked the beginning of the modern sugar-making from sugar beets.

Odd Postage Stamps

In the main hall of the South Kensington museum, London, is to be seen one of the most remarkable collections of postage stamps in the world. Every one of the hundreds of specimens displayed portrays some member of the animal kingdom in its native haunts. For the most part they are typical of the countries from whence they come.

Ralph Waldo Emerson's View

Ralph Waldo Emerson, "the wisest of Americans," mentions the name of Shakespeare twice as frequently in his writings as he does that of his next favorite, Goethe. He is reported to have said, "I am always happy to meet persons who perceive the transcendent superiority of Shakespeare over all other writers."

Hamlet's Sanity

Whether or not Hamlet was insane is a question which has disturbed critics for 300 years. It is interesting to know that most of the profound thinkers who have given the question deep consideration regard Hamlet as sane. It would seem that if Hamlet was insane there is no point in the drama.—Washington Star.

Bird Sheep Herder

The yakamik, a species of crane, is used by the natives of Venezuela, South America, in the place of shepherd dogs, for guarding and herding flocks of sheep. However far the yakamik may wander with the flocks, it never fails to find its way home at night, driving before it all the creatures entrusted to its care.

Best Things Are Nearest

The best things are nearest: breath in your nostrils, light in your eyes, flowers at your feet, duties at your hand, the path of God just before you. Then do not grasp at the stars, but do life's plain, common work as it comes, certain that daily duties and daily bread are the sweetest things of life.—R. L. Stevenson.

Man's Supremacy

Scientists tell us that what has lifted man above the brute creation with which he has so much in common is the fact that he can touch each of his fingers with his thumb! No other living thing can do that. Try experiments with your own hand, and see what a difference it would make if you could not do this simple-seeming act.

Glaciers Disappear

The evidence indicates that hundreds of small glaciers have disappeared altogether from the Yosemite National park during the last half century. The first "living glacier" discovered by John Muir in 1871 in the Sierra Nevada has now ceased to exist, it is reported.

POULTRY

MAKE HENS PROVE
WHAT THEY CAN DOSuccessful Poultryman Has
No Use for Loafer.By O. C. UFFORD, Extension Poultryman, Colorado Agricultural College,
WNU Service.

How many of your hens are eating good feed and paying nothing for it? It is now the time of the year to summon your flock to court and convict and sentence every loafer. Before a flock can be culled intelligently it must be fed the right kind of a ration to produce eggs, at least six weeks before the culling starts. This will give every hen an opportunity to show what she can do under right conditions.

A good standard ration that will produce a maximum number of eggs, and a ration consisting largely of feeds available on the farm, is as follows: Equal parts, by weight, of fine yellow corn chop, bran, shorts, ground oats or ground barley, and meat scraps or meat meal. Ground wheat may be used for the bran and shorts, and milk for half the meat.

The present low prices of eggs emphasizes the value and importance of culling. Only a hen with a well developed, healthy body will stand the strain of heavy laying. Clear eyes, a well-set body and an active disposition are signs of vigor and health, although there are many robust hens, especially among the heavy breeds, that are poor layers.

Gives Opinion Against Confinement of Chicks

Don't confine chicks unless forced to do so, is the recommendation of J. C. Taylor, poultry specialist at the New Jersey Experiment station. Even semi-confinement is not advised this year, except under special conditions.

In summing up the requirements for the growth of healthy chicks, Professor Taylor advises poultrymen to brood their birds with coal brooders. Avoid overcrowding by placing a small number of chicks under each hover. See that the chicks have plenty of fresh air in the houses, that the food is kept clean and that plenty of water is supplied at all times. The fresh air will help to prevent overheating at this time of the year. Also get the chicks out on the ground at the very earliest day.

If the ground is full of disease and clean soil cannot be provided, the confinement system can be used if proper precautions are taken to avoid certain troubles that may arise if the sanitation is not the very best.—American Agriculturist.

Turkey Breeding

If old tom turkeys are healthy and full of vigor and vitality it is all right to use them with young hens. It is always best to use mature hens for breeders, those that are yearlings or two-year-olds generally prove the best as the eggs from these are larger. As a result the poulters are stronger and show better vitality than stock which is raised from young hens. Young hens, however, can be successfully used if they are well developed and mated to old toms. Use only one tom with the hens at a time. Confine the gobbler that is not used in a roomy, well-ventilated pen, giving him plenty of feed such as mixed grains, grit, oyster shell, a little meat scrap and plenty of fresh water. Use the toms alternately.

Weed Out Affected Birds

If avian tuberculosis is known to be present in the poultry flock, or on the farm premises, the birds should not be held in the flock longer than one year, is the recommendation of F. E. Moore, extension poultry specialist of the North Dakota Agricultural college.

When tuberculosis is not present and the poultryman is interested in flock improvement, especially from the standpoint of egg production, the best birds may be kept as long as they can stand the tests of rigid culling. Under these circumstances the birds' abilities as breeders should be the measure of their value.—Dakota Farmer.

Confinement Not Advised

It has been frequently demonstrated that by special management chicks can be raised successfully in confinement. However, this method is not suggested for the poultry raiser who has not experienced serious disease and parasitic complications which can be attributed to contaminated range, or when a clean range is conveniently available. Confinement, it has been proved, has no advantages.—Ohio Experiment Station Press Bulletin, reported by Hoard's Dairyman.

Poultry Facts

4-H club members in New York state are expected to raise 26,000 pheasants this year.

Crossing different breeds of poultry will not produce a standard product and is not advisable when one is attempting to obtain a high egg yield.

Resistance to disease can be increased by breeding from strong unrelated birds and by the use of good feeds and good feeding methods.

REPAIR CRISIS
COMING SOONAvoidable Home Neglect
Costs Millions; Save
by Painting Now.

Home owners and others throughout the United States face an avoidable burden of $200,000,000 for repairs and replacements next spring, that can be prevented by adopting proper precautions this fall.

A crisis that has been approaching for several years will be reached this winter, and "a vigorous offensive program" to lessen its seriousness will be inaugurated at once, according to an announcement by the Acme White Lead and Color Works, Detroit White Lead Works, W. W. Lawrence & Co., Lincoln Paint & Color Co., the Lowe Brothers Co., John Lucas & Co., Inc., the Martin-Senour Co., Peninsular Paint & Varnish Co., the Sherwin-Williams Co. Newspaper advertising in every part of the United States will be used to tell property owners of the danger from further delay in making needed repairs and replacements.

"Millions of dollars can be saved by giving buildings proper care this fall. They have been exposed to the elements three, four and five years, through neglect and postponement of needed work. Property and equipment cannot go longer lacking proper protection, without further serious injury.

"When a woman's home is saved from foreclosure by a coat of new paint which led to a renewal of the loan on the house, as has just been reported from a small Middle Western town, it is easy to see that other benefits than just those of property protection can be derived, too, from adopting the correct safeguard methods.

"Prices of good paints are the lowest in fifteen years. Enough good, dependable paint to protect all the badly weathered surfaces on the average home can be bought with a few dollars. The general buying public has already begun responding to advance promotion through our distributing and retail channels. Encouraging orders from large key industries and railways are simply the forerunner of a pick-up through all the various industries. We are entering a paint market of huge proportions. We are moving with greater confidence than in many months."—Adv.

Oldest Married Couple?

Jugoslavia claims to have found the oldest married couple in the world. The husband is one hundred and seventeen, and the wife one hundred and fifteen, and they have been married 100 years. They are peasants and live in a village near Nish. Both still enjoy good health. More than 100 descendants took part in a festival held recently at the aged couple's farm to honor them.

CHILDREN'S STORY

BILLY MINK'S MISTAKE

PETER RABBIT had been quite right about Billy Mink. Billy was hungry. He was especially hungry for a dinner of tender young birds. He had eaten fish until he felt as if he would turn into a fish himself. He was tired of fish and wanted a change. I guess you know how he felt. No matter how fond of a thing we may be there comes a time when our stomachs grow tired of it. This is true even of candy and ice cream when we have too much of them. And it was just that way with Billy Mink.

When he had started out that morning Billy had had no particular plan. He just trusted to luck to find something besides fish to eat. He had stopped at the Smiling Pool to pass the time of day with Jerry Muskrat, and it was while he was there that he had noticed Rattles the Kingfisher flying down the Laughing Brook with a tiny fish in his bill. It wasn't long before he was back watching for another fish, and when he caught it he took it off down the Laughing Brook. This was enough for Billy Mink. He knew right away what it meant. It

SEVERAL GOOD THINGS

SALAD dressings are a food accessory which we find a daily necessity and when one presents one that is different we hail it with joy.

Sour Cream Dressing.

Mix together one tablespoonful of flour, one-half teaspoonful of salt, one-eighth teaspoonful of pepper and one-half cupful of vinegar. Stir until smooth. Add one cupful of sour cream, stir over water in a double boiler until it begins to boil. Remove from the fire immediately. If sour milk is used add two tablespoonfuls of olive oil and cook as above.

Veal a la King.

Take two pounds of lean veal, cut into cubes about one inch square. Add water to cover after it has been well browned in one-fourth cupful of butter. Add six medium-sized carrots, two onions, one sweet pepper—all minced; one bay leaf, four cloves and cook until the meat is tender. Keep enough water to make a pint of liquor during the cooking. Add one quart of scalded sweet cream thickened as for gravy, add one can of mushrooms cut fine and one can of sifted peas. Season to taste with salt and paprika and serve on noodles.

A dainty and pretty as well as an easy dessert is prepared thus: Bake small cupcakes, cover with thin slices of candy bar—any with or without nuts. Pour a hot custard over them or a lemon sauce. Serve hot or cold. Cut cake into layers with sliced candy bar between, serve with whipped cream or any desired sauce.

St. Louis Has Colony of Clay-Eaters

IN ST. LOUIS, MO., there has been discovered a colony of clay-eaters. Their source of supply is an ideal clay mound about which they gather to scoop it up and consume it. They claim that they do not eat it because of hunger but because it leaves a pleasant "tang" in the mouth and is a desirable food. Persons of various ages admit eating this clay and some have done it for years. This particular mound is most favorable because its clay is not gritty. Our photograph shows two youngsters sampling the clay.

meant that somewhere down the Laughing Brook was a home with babies in it. The very thought made Billy's mouth water. He cut his visit with Jerry Muskrat short and started down the Laughing Brook.

Now, unlike Peter Rabbit, Billy knew just what to look for, and where to look for it. He knew all about the ways of Rattles the Kingfisher, and just what kind of a place he would choose for a home, and he didn't have a doubt of being able to find it. But he took precious good care not to let Rattles the Kingfisher catch a glimpse of him. He knew that if Rattles once saw him going down the Laughing Brook he would mount guard over his home, and Billy was of no mind to face that sharp, spear-like bill which Rattles possesses. So whenever he heard Rattles coming, Billy hid until the way was clear once more.

You remember that Billy was hiding right near the sandbank where Rattles had made his home at the time Peter Rabbit, watching from the opposite shore, discovered it. All that Peter saw Bill Mink saw, too. He saw the little hole close up under the edge of the high sandbank where the grasses hung over and partly hid it. He saw Rattles go in and come put again. And when he swam across to the foot of the bank and tested the air with his keen little nose he smelled young kingfishers. Before he had made up his mind just what to do he heard Rattles returning, and once more hid. The instant Rattles departed again for another tiny fish for those hungry babies, Billy scrambled up the bank. There was no time to lose. He wanted to get those babies and get away before Rattles should return. He had nothing to fear from the little kingfishers, they would be quite helpless and harmless.

So Billy scrambled up the sandbank and into the hole. The instant he got his head inside he forgot everything but the feast he would have, for his nose told him that way way back at the end of a long hall was a nestful of young birds. If he had stopped to smell a little more carefully that nose of his might have told him something else. But he was so eager that he didn't stop to find out all that his nose might have told him. That was where he made a mistake—a very great mistake. If he had heeded his nose he would have remembered something which he had quite forgotten in his greedy haste. He would have remembered that he hadn't seen anything of Mrs. Rattles, and Mrs. Rattles carries quite as big and sharp a bill as does Rattles himself.

But Billy had forgotten all about this and in his greedy haste pushed in along that narrow hall where there wasn't room to turn around. It was a mistake, a very great mistake. Half way to the nest at the end of that long hall Billy found it out.

EACH HAS HIS PLACE

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

THE sea looks up to the hills,
The hills look down to the sea,
Each looks upon the place it fills
And thinks the other free.
The waters ebb and flow,
The slaves of wind and tide;
The mountains may not move, and so
They are dissatisfied.

The ocean longs to rest,
The hills to wander far,
Though each is serving God its best,
As men and all things are.
Yet men grow discontent,
And envious, and sad;
So many a weary hour is spent,
An hour that might be glad.

I know not what the case,
Your duty sea or hill,
But this I know: it is a place
That no one else can fill.
Each has some task to do,
Each has some thing to be—
You look at me, I look at you,
And think the other free.

Lesson for September 25

REVIEW: MOSES HONORED IN HIS DEATH.

GOLDEN TEXT—Precious in the sight of the Lord is the death of his saints.

LESSON TEXT—Deuteronomy 32:48-52; 34:5-8.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Moses Goes to Live With God.

JUNIOR TOPIC—The Death of a Great Leader.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—What We May Learn from the Life of Moses.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—What the World Owes Moses.

I. Moses Debarred From Canaan (32:48-52).

This act of God strikingly displays the tragedy of an unfinished task. Moses was loyal to God and faithfully served him through a long life. Though his "eye was not dimmed nor his natural force abated," he was obliged to leave his work unfinished. This is true of all of us. However, the tragedy is only apparent. Life is a probation. The question is not of finished tasks, but fidelity in service and growth in divine grace.

1. The reason for (v. 51). It was sin. The nature of this sin is given in Numbers 20:1-13. It was his failure to sanctify the Lord at Meribah. This penalty, while severe, was not too severe, for the righteousness of God demands the meting out of penalty upon every transgression. This was too glaring a sin for the Lord to pass over, though Moses had served him faithfully for many years.

2. God's treatment of Moses (vv. 49, 50). While it was severe, it was yet most tender. It was in keeping with God's nature. While God cannot pass over sin, he is always as gracious as his justice will permit. He appointed the place of Moses' death on the mount of vision. Moses was gathered "unto his people."

II. Moses Views the Promised Land from Mount Pisgah (34:1-4).

At the Lord's bidding Moses ascended the mountain of Nebo from which he got a view of the promised land. He obeyed though he knew that he was to die there (32:50). He greatly desired to go into the land (3:25), but submitted to the will of the Lord. Though he was not permitted to enter the land, God gave him a view of the fullest dimensions of the land which was to be the inheritance of the people he had delivered and led for forty years. While Moses suffered this severe penalty, we should remember that his salvation was not affected. He was debarred from entrance to the land at that time, but we see him in the land some fifteen centuries later in a state of glory discoursing with Christ on the loftiest theme of the universe; namely, the death which he would accomplish at Jerusalem (Matt. 17:1-5; Luke 9:28-31).

III. The Death and Burial of Moses (34:5-8).

1. His death (v. 5). Though he died in the vigor of manhood, his work was done. God put him into the world for a purpose and as soon as that work was done he called him home. It is stated in verse five that he died according to the word of the Lord.

2. The burial of Moses (v. 8). God buried him. Moses had no human help or sympathy in his dying hour, but he had something better. The Lord was with him. His grave was concealed to prevent his people from making it a shrine.

3. The time of mourning for Moses (v. 8). They mourned for thirty days. It was customary to mourn for the dead from seven to seventy days. It is not wrong to lay away earthly friends even with tears, but as Christians we should not mourn as those who have no hope.

IV. An Encomium upon Moses (34:10-12).

In this eulogy Moses is given a place at the head of the Old Testament prophets. With the exception of the greater prophet (Deut. 18:15-18) of whom Moses was a type, he stands as the greatest prophet of Israel.

1. Because of his intimacy with God (v. 10). "Whom the Lord knew face to face."

2. He was great in that he gave to the world a code of laws unequalled in the world's history.

3. He was great as a general in that he liberated the Israelitish nation from the oppression of the greatest nation of the earth.

4. He was great because he led two or three million Israelites through the desert for forty years.

5. He was great because he gave to us in the book of Deuteronomy three orations, which, according to the judgment of competent critics, stand at the head of the world's literature.

Fans the Frost Away

Fred Rustenburg has 100 acres of beans on his farm near San Benito, Texas. The earliest beans marketed naturally bring premium prices, and as the tender young plants fall an easy prey to late frosts, there is the constant danger of having them nipped. To ward off these late frosts, Rustenburg has mounted three airplane propellers with their motors, taken from World War air bombers. Whenever the temperature sinks to the danger point, Rustenburg starts his motors and the currents of air set in motion keep the frost from forming, just as happens on a windy night, even if temperatures are quite low.

Defaulted Obligations Of Cook County Over $370,000,000 Mark

Defaulted obligations of the governmental agencies in Cook County had reached the staggering sum of $334,014,761.40 on September 6th, 1932. These figures are contained in a resolution adopted by the Board of Commissioners of Cook County, copies of which were sent to the General Assembly of the State of Illinois for the purpose of urging the Legislature at the present session to pass a sales tax for raising additional revenue. The figures above represent only the amounts in default in Cook County. In addition to this indebtedness are the outstanding bonds issued by the City of Chicago, the schools, the Sanitary District, Cook County and other governmental bodies.

Owes One-Third of Billion.

Cook County's one-third of a billion dollars in default consists, according to the statement of the county commissioners, of $196,118,522.23 of outstanding anticipation tax warrants, $89,645,678.95 of unpaid bills, $36,347,118.82 of unpaid salaries and a total of $11,093,107.40 of defaulted principal and interest payments on bonds. The Cook County Board of Commissioners which corresponds to the Board of Supervisors in Will County and down state counties, in their resolution, give in detail the various items making up the total obligations enumerated.

To make matters worse Cook County owed on September 6, 1932, a total of $36,000,000 to the State of Illinois for delinquent state taxes from 1928 to the present time and this amount is not included in the statement of the Cook County Board. If it were included the total amount of debts in default in Cook County would be increased to more than $370,000,000.

Failure of Cook County to pay these taxes has crippled the functions of the Illinois state government and is proving costly to downstate which has paid its taxes regularly. Because of Cook County's failure to pay taxes it has been necessary for the state officials to borrow $11,000,000 on anticipation tax warrants and this money has been taken from the state highway funds. Had Chicago paid its taxes the same as downstate, these borrowings would not have been necessary and besides employment could have been given to thousands of additional men the present season in highway construction.

Relief Bills Expensive.

In addition to the $370,000,000 in defaulted obligations in Cook County the state legislature at the request of the Chicago committee appointed by Mayor Cermak raised $18,750,000 by the sale of anticipation tax warrants for the purpose of providing for the unemployed and needy of the state. Of this sum which was obtained on state credit, 94 per cent has been used in Cook County and only 6 per cent downstate and unless the $20,000,000 bond issue bill carries in the November election, the entire amount of the 18,750,000 will be added to the tax levy next year, nearly doubling the state tax on this one item. Fifty-seven counties of the state which did not receive any of the money, will be required to pay their full share although Cook County received nearly all the funds. The indications are that the bond issue will not carry because the Chicago newspapers and the Chicago committee are not carrying on a campaign in its favor as promised the legislature by the Cermak committee. Even Judge Horner and his slate candidates on the Cermak state ticket have made no mention of the proposed bond issue except in a few towns where they have been severely criticised for their failure to keep their promises. Doubling of the state tax next year will be an inevitable result.

State's Credit Unused.

In addition to state relief funds the state has borrowed $9,000,000 from the Federal government for state relief purposes and likewise 94 per cent of the money has been spent in Chicago and only 6 per cent downstate. Of this obligation the state must pay the entire amount with 3 per cent interest.

Chicago will receive another advantage at the expense of downstate as a result of the recent announcement by J. L. Jacobs, county assessor that real estate valuations are to be reduced 28 per cent and this is to apply to the tax bills for 1931 which have already been paid in the downstate counties although no attempt will be made to collect the taxes for 1931 in Cook County until some time after next March. As a result of this reduction in Cook County valuations, the state will receive less state tax for 1931 than had been anticipated by the state officers although the downstate taxpayers have paid their quota. With these items summed up, it appears certain that the state taxes for next year in Illinois will be more than doubled.

Sales Tax Recommended.

After outlining in detail the desperate situation which prevails in Cook County, the resolution which was introduced by Commissioner Walter J. LaBuy and adopted by the Board, concludes with the recommendation to amend the revenue laws by levying a sales tax on commodities that are purchased by the public. This additional tax would apply to the entire State of Illinois and in effect would result in downstate being required to pay more taxes, the objective being to try to restore the financial credit of Cook County because the people of Cook County have not paid their taxes. Cook County real estate upon which taxes are already delinquent would be further relieved by the enactment of a sales tax, it is stated in the resolution. The additional tax, the resolution says, is necessary because, "Chaos exists in the matter of collection of taxes in Cook County, the delinquency in tax payments is increasing yearly. 17 per cent of the 1928 taxes are uncollected; 31 per cent of the 1929 taxes have not been paid and only 53 per cent of the 1930 taxes have been received, leaving a balance of uncollected taxes due the State and the local governments for the three year period, $254,331,780.76. In addition the entire tax levy for 1931 has not been spread and is therefore uncollected." It will be sometime late next year before the assessment for 1932, already completed downstate, will be commenced in Chicago.

Cermak to Seek Loan

The legislature has given indications that it will not pass the sales tax bill or any other measure calculated to raise money statewide for use in Chicago, or to transfer Chicago's financial obligations to downstate in which event the Cermak committee announces it will make another drive to induce the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to loan more money to the State of Illinois to use in Chicago. The Cermak committee wants $17,000,000 for use in Chicago from October 1 to January 1 and also wants the state to make total borrowings of $45,000,000 from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation practically all of which would be used in Chicago and be an obligation against the state.

If the people who live downstate are to have any hope of relief from paying staggering amounts of money in additional taxes because of the local Chicago troubles, they must not give Chicago the additional power of a Chicago man for Governor.

Attention is called to the fact that the Chicago committee is not keeping its pledge made to the legislature when that body was induced to vote unemployment relief. Those familiar with the situation in the state are of the opinion that the $20,000,000 bond issue proposal will fail at the polls in November. Should that be the case the state tax rate will be nearly doubled next year.

For farmers and property owners who feel keenly the effects of the depression, further tax boosts next year will work a great hardship. Much will be done to relieve this situation if the $20,000,000 bond issue bill prevails.

If the dirty, grafting, crooked and stealing politicians of Chicago and Cook County could all be put in prison for life, it would put an end to the present deplorable situation. The fellows who have brought on present situations are no more than the scum of the earth. It is a pity that there are so many crooked lawyers, judges and jurymen who con-

ELIMINATION OF UNNECESSARY SUBJECTS IS BEING ADVOCATED

Elimination of non-essential subjects from the curricula of our colleges is the solution recommended by Benjamin F. Bellis, President of Chicago College of Commerce, to the problem presented by attacks upon the worth of our college educational system.

After a comprehensive study of the curricula of all the outstanding universities in the United States, Chicago College of Commerce has devised an educational program for business training which eliminates the non-essential academic subjects and concentrates upon the basic education necessary for lasting success in the business world.

PEOTONE OPENS WAR ON TERRORIST GROUPS

As a result of the tough element of Chicago Heights pulling off night raids, resorting to extortion and kidnap threats, the people of Peotone township are all worked up and on Friday night 150 men banded together in Peotone and organized a local protective organization for the purpose of driving the extortionists and other criminals out of the eastern part of Will County. These men have been sworn in as deputy sheriffs and armed with shot guns and high powered rifles, they will patrol the highways at night.

The terrorists have been operating in Beecher, Monee and Green Garden besides Peotone. The sure cure for exterminating these criminals is to kill half a dozen or more and put the fear of the wrath of the local vigilantes in their hearts.

The old time western methods of enforcing law and order would soon end terrorism. These criminals are no more than human rats and should be killed off like rats. No quarter should be shown them.

Green Garden Cuts Road and Bridge Tax

At the meeting of the town board of auditors of Green Garden township held a week ago, the road and bridge tax levy was reduced from 25 cents to 20 cents.

The general feeling in Green Garden on the proposed county commission form is in opposition to it.

done and side in with the crooked politicians. Apparently justice and truth and righteousness are only considered fairy tales in this day and age.

It's easy to save money
this way...

The popular low-priced Thor washer is pictured above—now only $69.50 cash—only $6.95 down "Little by Little". Same model with "skirt" is only $49.50 cash—$4.95 down.

Hundreds of women are doing their own washing today who never did it before. No wonder! Electric washers have never been priced so low—they save you a dollar or more every week on your laundry bill. There's no hard work, either. You simply load the tub and the agitator rubs clothes clean. (No preliminary soaking is necessary.) A motor-driven wringer gets clothes ready for the line. In two hours the average wash is done. Let us demonstrate in your home. No obligation.

Alpine Vinyard An Imposing Sight

A very imposing sight is that of the grape vinyard on the Lempe place in Alpine. Mr. Lempe set out the vinyard about seven years ago. He has 3300 vines now and all are bearing. The grapes hang in great luscious bunches, some of which weigh a pound each.

Mr. Lempe had a crop of 12,000 pounds of grapes last year, but estimates his crop will be three times as large this year. The rows are set apart quite wide and the spaces are sown to rye which after it reaches a certain growth is cut down and used as fertilizer and it also prevents the earth from cracking in dry weather and helps to retain the moisture in the ground.

Mr. Lempe ran an adv. in this paper the past two weeks and has had wonderful results from same, selling a large quantity of grapes and also peaches. Mr. Lempe has been so well pleased with the results of his advertising that he is running another adv. this week.

Mr. Lempe has a number of men on the place all the time and they are on guard against thieves. One night they heard a car stop near the place. After a careful watch they saw a man climbing over the fence and heading for the grapes. They opened fire and the would be thief beat a hasty retreat.

This vinyard is well worth while seeing and the grapes are an interesting sight to behold.

"And there lay round upon the ground great heaps of so'gers."

Always he was up before daylight in the morning, when he lighted his lamp, started his fire, washed, and dusted the furniture and swept the floor.

When he shook Shad's shoulder in the morning the grateful odor of coffee and buckwheat cakes and frying sausage was in the air.

"Come, ol' friend," he called. "It's the next day. Breakfast is ready an' I warn ye it's fit fer kings an' queens."

Shad needed no urging. He leaped out of bed and dressed in a hurry and washed at the river's edge.

"Hurry up an' comb yer hair," Bumpy sputtered as he brought the hot platters to the table. "It looks as if a mouse had made a nest in it."

The boy had a great liking for hot cakes and maple sirup and sausage. Bumpy seemed to find a sufficient reward for his work in Shad's enjoyment. He kept an eye on him in the fashion of an interested witness.

"Don't split so much sirup on 'em," he was wont to say. "By Jeedix! You make 'em look like an island in a red pond. There ain't no sense in that. You don't take more'n two swallows fer a flapjack. Anybody would think ye was mad at 'em."

Bumpy's sputtering had a background of good nature. Shad enjoyed it. After breakfast he brought in two pails of water and filled the woodbox. Soon after seven o'clock he set out for Amity Dam with a volume of Blackstone under his arm.

"Be on hand for dinner a leetle before two," Bumpy called to him from the door.

Having arrived in the familiar village, Shad went at once to the house of his friend the doctor. The latter was reading in his office.

"I am glad to see you, boy," he said without rising. "Sit down and tell me what has happened."

Shad told the doctor of the steps that led to the capture of Algire and of the prisoner's sullen attitude.

"Well done!" the doctor exclaimed with no change in the expression of his face. "It will yield no immediate result but it is a long step toward the truth. Soon or late the man may uncover it. He is a smart fellow. He knows that Blake has not evidence enough to hold him. We have as yet only a suspicion. Even if he became a witness for the people, he could not escape life imprisonment or a long term for a crime so atrocious. He is a born gambler. He would rather take his chances in the West. But if they have a good case against him and he should be convicted we may expect help from him. We may not have long to wait. Meanwhile, my dear boy, you will, of course, get a share of the reward."

"I haven't thought of that. I wouldn't know what to do with it," Shad answered.

"But you would know what to do with an education."

"I'm getting educated. I'm learning something every day. I'd rather the reward would go to you and Colonel Blake."

The doctor smiled and said: "Well, boy, if I am entitled to any of it, which I question, it shall be yours. There is another matter of which I would speak. You are to mention it only to Colonel Blake. Be careful that no one overhears you. I recall your telling me once of the handsome young lady who worked in the store in South Bolton. You had seen her one day at Bumpy Brown's shack. I went to call on a patient in that village about ten days ago. I heard some gossip about her. It was interesting but unkind. I went to the store. The girl was there alone. The look of her confirmed the gossip. It grieved me to see a beautiful girl friendless and in her condition. I talked with her a little. She didn't seem to know what was the matter. It was a sad case. I gave her my telephone number and told her that when she needed help I would come."

"Familiar as I am with the process, I always feel when I help to deliver a child as if I had had a humble part in a miracle. The girl went to a lonely settlement away back in the woods. There she got the help of a midwife. The child was born. Something went wrong. She began to fail and asked them to send for me. I went and found her in a critical condition. She will probably die. Some rotten-hearted man who has no share in her trouble has brought her to that pass."

"I am not preaching to you, my boy. I tell you these things only because I suspect that the girl has some connection with our case. Robert Royce took her to the house of the midwife. He was often seen with her. Now, Royce is the heir of Mrs. Doolittle. The theory has come to my friend, Judge Swift, that Mrs. Doolittle did not like the girl; that she had threatened to disinherit the young man if he married her. Therein is a double motive for getting rid of his mother."

Shad smiled, saying: "I feel sure that Royce is the man and I think that Colonel Blake does."

"I do not feel sure, although there is much to indicate it," the doctor went on. "I know Royce well. I would say that he is not the type of man we are seeking. Still it is easy to be deceived."

Shad showed the volume he had been studying to the doctor and the queries in his notebook. The learned man answered them, and said:

"The time has come when you need a bigger dictionary. I will lend you mine. I will have my man bring it to you at Brown's cove."

He looked through many pages of the "Commentaries" and noted down the meaning of the unusual words and Latin phrases. He gave the boy a book entitled "The Youth's History of England," and recommended that he read it carefully before continuing his study of Blackstone. The doctor arose. His horse and buckboard were at the door.

"I must be going," he said. "Please go and see Miss Spenlow. She has a deep interest in you."

The doctor set out on his rounds and Shad went to the boarding house.

CHAPTER X

Miss Spenlow Expresses New Sentiments.

The benevolent spirit of Miss Betsy Spenlow had entered upon a great sentimental adventure. Her face shone with a new enthusiasm. She arose and threw her arms around the boy and kissed him. Her affectionate greeting was a bore to him, but he took it with a cheerful countenance.

"You are growing so big and handsome!" she exclaimed. "Sit down. I want to tell you what has happened. I have got the sweetest, little, teeny, teeny baby that you ever saw."

"Let's Call It the House of the Three Ganders."

Shad turned with a look of astonishment.

"The doctor brought it here so that I could take it to the Home for the Friendless," she went on. "The little thing has got hold of my heart. I don't know how I'm ever going to part with it. Just come into my bedroom and take a look at her. It's a little girl."

The boy had no interest in babies, but he went. The child lay asleep, with a nursing bottle beside it, in a swinging brass crib. Miss Spenlow lifted it in her arms and said:

"Did you ever see anything so cunning in your life? Look at that little hand."

To Shad the young child was red and smelly and unattractive, but he would not take issue with a lady in such a matter. He agreed with her like a gentleman.

"Look at these dainty baby clothes," she went on. "The doctor brought them and the crib and everything."

"Isn't it a great trouble to you?" Shad asked.

"Not a bit. The young girls come in and help me take care of it night and morning. I was never so happy in my life as I am with this baby."

She put it back in its crib and they returned to the sitting room.

"Had you heard that Deacon Plumb was dead?" she asked.

"Yes, I read of it in the Canton paper."

"What a pity!" she exclaimed. "If there ever was a good Christian man in this world, it was Deacon Plumb. He left five hundred dollars to the Home for the Friendless."

Shad remembered how fussy the deacon had been about his mail. When told that there was none for him he was wont to stare sternly at the boy

Lejeune Got "Thriller" After War Was Over

When General Lejeune was asked to relate his most thrilling war experience he smiled and said:

"It did not come in the war, but after it, when the troops of occupation were passing through Belgium. We were given a wonderful reception and in one city I was on the platform and had to make a speech. When I had finished our chaplain arose and to my amazement and horror announced that Mlle. Clementine, the famous dancer who was traveling with me, would entertain with some of her inimitable dances."

"And how she danced, while I sat there in horror, knowing that my reputation was ruined beyond repair."

"Imagine, then, my relief when,

as if he didn't believe it, and go away muttering.

Miss Spenlow added: "I have written a poem which was read at the church social the other evening. Some said that it ought to be published. I will read it to you."

At this point Shad was rescued by the arrival of Bony, who had been mending his canoe.

Shad wrote a letter to Colonel Blake, in which he reported the news which had come out in his interview with the doctor. This done, he and Bony talked a while. The doctor's hired girl came in to sit with the baby while Miss Spenlow went to Sunday school. She was its superintendent. Soon the boys set out afoot for Brown's cove.

Shad swore Bony to secrecy and told him of the late phases in the remarkable problem of the People, and of the capture of Algire.

"It's wonderful—what you've done," said Bony. "I heard 'em tellin' in the store that the district attorney thought you was the most promisin' boy that he had ever seen."

Shad smiled and was silent for a little time. The words had quickened the beating of his heart. They were bread to his soul.

"I don't know what he thinks," Shad answered. "He's never told me. I'm going to do my best to please him. That's all I can do."

"I feel sorry for poor ol' Bumpy. He was up at the Dam while you was away to see if there was any letter for him. Ol' Doran was in the store an' abused him shameful—called him a liar an' a thief an' a murderer. Bumpy walked away an' never said a word. When that ol' pup Doran got out o' the store I called him every name I could lay my tongue to."

Shad answered: "The poor old man never said a word to me about it. He must have a heavy heart in him but he keeps cheerful. There's something kind o' wonderful about him. I know a lot I couldn't tell—not yet."

"There ain't one o' them pin heads that does so much talkin' that's fit to black his shoes."

They were nearing the little house in Brown's cove. Bumpy, who had been watching the trail through a window as he worked, hustled out of the front door to greet them.

"Hurry up, you pair of young ganders," he shouted. "The old goose is ready an' smokin' hot. Come on."

It was then that Shad gave the little house a name which passed into history. It was suggested by like names in the novels of Reade and Dickens.

"Let's call it The House of the Three Ganders," he proposed.

"I agree an' that makes a majority," said Bumpy. "Hurry now an' git washed up an' yer hairs combed."

CHAPTER XI

Important Events in the House of the Three Ganders.

The weather turned stormy. At daylight the air was full of rain flying in the wind. Shad brought in a good supply of wood and water and sat down with his task while the raindrops hissed upon the roof and window-panes. The doctor had sent down his big Webster's dictionary. Shad got far along with "The Youth's History of England" that day. Bumpy was a real help to the boy while the reading progressed. In his droll way he explained how dukes, lords, barons and popes were made and what was expected of them.

"A lord was a man who fit good in battle," he explained. "The king slaps him on the back an' says, 'Ol' boy, put 'er there. You've done grand. Hereafter you'll have all the land an' money ye want an' nothin' to do but look as beautiful as ye can an' be a gentleman an' my friend, an' yer oldest boy shall be a lord an' yer daughters shall be grand ladies."

"Ye see a kingdom was a kind of a doll factory where ladies an' gentlemen was made an' dressed up an' sold to the people. An' the people give 'em castles to live in an' horses an' hounds to play with. The people has to have some one that wears velvet coats an' gowns an' looks grand an' does more or less cuttin' up. It gives 'em suthin' to wonder at an' talk about. What would the folks do in Amity Dam if everybody was good. Their mouths would dry up an' their tongues would git par'lyzed."

When night came Shad sat under the evening lamp with Bumpy and they discussed the great battles of the people for their liberty with the State, the barons and the Church of which he had been reading. In three days he had a fairly good understanding of the background of the "Commentaries" of Sir William Blackstone.

"I'd say your gun was to'able well loaded," said the old man in their last review. "I guess the colonel will jump when you shoot it off at him. He'll break down an' holler fer help."

at the end of the dance, Mlle. Clementine removed a very pretentious wig and I recognized the close-cropped black head and smiling countenance of my very masculine soldier-cook and the chaplain explained the joke to the audience.

"Ah," I exclaimed jumping to my feet, "if he only could cook as well as he dances war would almost be a pleasure."

For the Horse

In the old horse and buggy days there was no such thing as a driver's license. Had one been required doubtless it would have been issued to the horse, which in many cases knew more than the driver.—Toledo Blade.

APPEAL TO WHITES TO AID DYING RACE

Australian Aborigines Near Extinction.

Isolated for hundreds of years with no ferocious human or animal enemies, the aborigines of Australia led their primitive Stone age life until after Captain Cook planted the flag of Britain on that island continent in 1770. They were out of the track of the great migrations and knew not the harrying hordes which swept over Europe, Asia and Africa from prehistoric times.

According to anthropologists, these aborigines were akin to the ancient Dravidians of southern India and the Vedda of Ceylon; they migrated to Australia when it was still joined to the Asiatic mainland and drove the original Australian—the Tasmanian man—into the fastnesses of Tasmania, which later became an island. Homo tasmanianus was an even more primitive type than the mainland aborigines and the last of his race died in 1876, exterminated by the ruthlessness of settlers.

There are estimated to be about 60,663 full-blooded aborigines in Australia and about 16,818 half-castes. At the time of the white man's arrival, the natives probably numbered at least 150,000. They are rapidly dying off and only about a 1,000 remain in New South Wales, and less than 100 in Victoria. Of all the aborigines, about 25,000 are nomadic and roam the northern territory and parts of Queensland and West Australia. In the northern territory, there are about 30,000 square miles of federal reserves and 1,700 square miles of missionary reserves for the natives. All aborigines except the nomads and the gainfully employed are wards of the state and receive free shelter, clothing and food.

Only recently has Australia tried to evolve a scientific policy for the conservation of the aborigines.

On the big cattle stations in the north the natives have proved adept stockmen and boundary riders. Observers say they have remarkable assimilative capacities.

NEITHER DID I, UNTIL I BEGAN USING RINSO! THESE SUDS SOAK CLOTHES WHITE AS SNOW. EASY ON HANDS, TOO

Rinso is safe for the finest cottons and linens—white or colors

Shadrach L. James, an aboriginal preacher, recently made a moving appeal to the Australian people to conserve his race. "The whole attitude of the white man toward the aborigine," he said, "has been all along to disparage and humiliate him, to extinguish his self-respect, to suppress his ambition."

"Our so-called protectors are diligently attending to the care of my people, with the full conviction that they are surely passing out. Hence, all their efforts for my people are mere palliatives."

He then enumerates what should be done. His chief recommendation is that land and homes be provided for the aborigines and that his people be taught to become an agricultural and pastoral race.

But look at him now! See what the scales are saying! Look at those muscles! Look at that husky framework! Look at the bright-eyed, pink-skinned health of him! It comes over you both with a great surge of happiness—he's a perfect specimen, your baby!

Can a baby thrive like that, if his mother's milk fails?

Millions of mothers nod a beaming "Yes!" For millions of mothers in America have had proof in their own homes that Eagle Brand builds wonderfully sturdy babies—babies that grow to be men and women of fine physique, outstanding health.

And recently, two famous baby specialists put Eagle Brand to one of the most searching tests that modern science has ever given a baby food. They fed fifty average infants on Eagle Brand* for a period of months, comparing results with other groups of babies similarly fed on other foods. They tested these babies' progress with the X-ray, with blood counts, with measuring, weighing, every modern check on growing structure, growing strength.

And measured by every scientific test, the result was favorable to Eagle Brand. These Eagle Brand babies showed themselves superbly nourished—lacking in nothing that makes for future health and stamina. Eagle Brand* had proved itself equal in every way to the building of 100% babies!

You see, Eagle Brand is wonderfully easy to digest—second only to mother's milk in easy digestibility. Every drop goes quickly into the making of bones and teeth, tissue and muscle, energy and strength. Eagle Brand is easily prepared—you merely add boiled water. See directions on the label. Eagle Brand is free from dangerous germs—safe for your baby. It keeps indefinitely in the can. And can be obtained at any grocer's.

Send for a free copy of "Baby's Welfare"—an 80-page booklet on feeding and caring for baby. It gives you pictures and histories of a number of Eagle Brand babies. And let us send your physician a report of the scientific test we have described.

*As with mother's milk, or any milk diet, the usual supplementary foods were given. These are, of course, orange or tomato juice, and cod-liver oil or other source of the anti-rachitic Vitamin D.
